Saria struggled in the sand with a rather large rock, "Althea, Raven? Can you help me with this one?" she asked, heaving up a rather large rock, "This might do the trick, but we will have to fly it up together, it's quite heavy." She said...
Cleo watched the winged guardians and smiled as the shield began to crack, "Its starting to break!" She said ecstatically...

Akihiko sighed and patted Bevelle on the head gently, "Don't cry. I didn't mean to make you sad," he said, not looking at her. He was kind of embarrassed that she was crying. Raven nodded, and picked up a large rock. She flew up and dropped it onto the force field.

Althea then suddenly felt bevelle feeling again and know she was going to try something risky. She looked over at bevelle and seen her still holding on but looking towards the gust of wind she then knew she was going to try to jump at the right moment and feared for bevelle.

Ginger, seeing Saria's idea, instantly flew to the shoreline, attempting to find the biggest rocks she could and throw them at the forcefield. She threw harder and harder, aiming at one spot in particular that looked weak. She really did love this expedition!

Akihiko patted her on the head gently, "I didn't mean to make you cry. Sorry Bevelle," he said, embarrassed slightly. He looked away from her. Raven picked up a large rock, "Like this?" she asked. Without waiting for an answer, she flew up and dropped it onto the force-field.

Althea helped saria with the last rock and let it go!
I hope that the last we need and looked at bevelle again

Saria watched the last rock fall and waited as it hit the force field in the weak spot near the front... Cleo watched as Saria and Althea lifted up what they hoped to be the last rock and carry it up toward the force field, she wished she could help but she had no wings, and she was afraid of falling into the water...

As Ravens rock hit the stones, a loud "crash" echoed through the room and the stones came tumbling down, destroying the forcefield.
The shard on Bevelle grew stronger and stonger. Bevelle quickly calculated the second pause between all the gusts and carefully made her way into the cave. She did get wet, as the non-major gust from the ceiling caught her, but it wasn't enough to knock her over. She thought that it was probably from her trying to control her movements, acting against the till of the shard.
Bevelle sighed in relief as the pressure from the ice shard dissipated. She turned to the group shouting "3-3-5-1" so they could safely make it inside the cave.

Althea rushed over to help saria with the big rock.
The flew up together caring and then let it go at the shield
Finally the shield was broken and the could continue

((Thalia's backstory now! YAY BACKSTORIES!!!))
A sound is heard in a forest. A black-haired girl runs out of the bushes (Thalia), followed by two blonde children, one a young girl around the age of seven and the other a teenage boy. They seem to be running for their lives, but from what? Finally in the distance, they see a small abandoned-looking cabin, and run faster than ever. It was early in the morning, probably before 4 A.M. They trudged on, restless until they reached the cabin. Once they got there, the teenage boy tried the light switch to find that it didn't work. So he then brought out a backpack and dugged around for it. The end result of this action was the discovery of a flashlight. They all unpacked worn sleeping bags, and set up camp in the cabin for the night.
CRACK! Thalia snapped off it when she heard the winged guardians throwing rocks at the forcefield, trying to break it. She wished she could help out.

Saria nodded at Bevelle's counting and landed on the bank, she knew that the winds were strong near the waterfall and she would have to walk across like everyone else. 3-3-5-1 She thought as she stepped across the stones, a little wairy at first, but more encouraging as she worked her way across until she came to stand beside Bevelle and Cleo...

Akihiko was beside her quickly, "Nice," he said approvingly, "Just don't go all sad on me again. It was kind of odd, I mean, you're supposed to be our leader, right?" he asked, making sure Raven giggled when her stone caused the force-field to chatter, "Yay!" she said, flying over to Believe and Akihiko.

Looking at the shard in front of her, on a wet pedestal of stone, it looked to be made of water. It glowed a green-blue and had a golden sparkles inside of it, but when Bevelle tried to pick it up, it went through her hands. She frowned, confused. She then saw a ripple in the shard and before her stood what she thought was the elemental of water.
The female, like water herself, smiled softly. She tilted her head at Bevelles puzzling face and softly chuckled. "Kirah told me that you would eventually make it here. If she has faith in you, then I do too. Let me help." Even her "voice" was soothing like water! The female smiled again before touching the stone. Before Bevelles eyes the water crystallized and she was able to pick it up. But before she could thank the elemental, she was gone. Blinking, she held the second shard closely.

Akihiko blinked, confused. "Why do they always disappear?" he asked to nobody in particular. He wondered absently if the water gusts were gone. "You should probably hold onto that tighter. Just in case the gusts of water are still there," he explained.

Althea amazed again seen the water elemental come and go before her eyes.
She called out bevelle are you ok?
Did you get the shard?
Are the all going to diaper like that she giggled?

Saria smiled as the water elemental disappeared, as if something had calmed her mixed emotions on the inside. She looked at Bevelle, "So back to the main room this time?" She asked, "I wonder what other elements are here, fire, air and earth all seem to be prime contenders..." She noted to herself... Cleo looked at Bevelle, "Are you okay for now? Can I let go? I will still stay close." She asked before making a decision...

Glow followed the others slowly, cautiously. She didn't want to end up falling into the water. She let out a sigh of relief as she reached the others. She looked up at the water elemental with a little smile. She was so pretty, and that voice, it was so beautiful. Glow really liked her. She was a little disappointed when the elemental disappeared. She was still excited though. They had two of the shards.

((The male fire elemental..is Scott...))
Bevelle sighed as the shard conformed to her neck, joining the other. They both glowed and Bevelles feelings on the other locations were a bit more solid. She looked up to the male. "Ill try," her voice was a bit weary but she let it be known that she would be ok. She put her hand on Cleo's and nodded, "Thankyou, Right now im ok". On the disappearing question, she shrugged her shoulders. "Im not sure exactly, but it must be their way of life."

Bevelle looked at the exit. All the gusts except for the ceiling one had settled. It would be alot easier getting out, and the worse case scenorio is getting wet. She closed her eyes and concentrated, getting the timing right, then walked towardst he end of the room and waited for the others.

Akihiko followed Bevelle swiftly, not bothering to time it. He got wet, and grinned. "Well, if the fire one is next, then I'm all set. At least it won't be the ice one." he said, grinning. "Thought if there's an air one, that could be rather cold." he added as an after thought.

Cleo followed directly behind Bevelle, holding Saria's hand for support. They both drew up beside her and waited for the others. "I'm a little glad we are leaving this room." Cleo said. Saria nodded, "Each room seems to be getting a little harder, and we should continue looking for traps in the others as well. I wonder what will be next..." She added...
