((LOL!!))
Dh'liah had stayed just in front of the group. His arms were now enclosed in a blue green glow, as he began to try to break whatever resistance this person had. While focusing mainly on the intruder, he could still hear what was going on behind him. He shook his head at the suggestion of trying to get the other elementals between bursts, he tried to answer them.
"The others----- are unable to help"
He threw the man deeper into the wall.

Bevelle, eyes wide open, couldn't believe her eyes. History was repeating itself. And they were stuck right in the middle of it. Snapping out of that realization she gestured to the group and began to lead them out. Once they were safe, she would go back and see what she could do to help.

safalia heard a meow she looked at when it didn't come from her. when she saw another cat. (pudds) she wondered were this other cat came from when it asked her if she knew what was going on, honestly she didn't know she just knew there was fighting and that she was staying safely away and she told the other cat this. when her back paw accidently pushed the shiny object she was playing with earlier and it made the "tink tink" noise again she immediately lost focus and again started playing batting they shiny thing around with her paws. "pounce" im gonna get you mr. shiny you cant escape me. me and my kitty paws of DOOM will get you.

Althea still ball out her self got up and join the group.
She thought to her crying I am more useful helping them being help less and try to help bevelle get everyone out.
So she ran over to bevelle and tried to help.

((Ok, I cant guarantee we will be done by then, but I promise we are close^^))
As bevelle led the way, the temple rumbled. Just as the last of the group was out, the shards on bevelles neck dimmed. A scratching noise could be heard followed by the clanking of metal and a very dark scream. The noises echoed and rose in volume, and the fires flickered, in unison with the noise. Bevelle could see Dh'liah phase back into the corner of the temple, along with Kirah. both looked to be tired out, and Kirah looked like she could collapse. The bird rested on Kirah, waiting.

Pudds realized that this cat (safalia) was not going to be able to help her much but she also realized that they were both in grave danger. Maybe leaving the light shield wasn't such a good idea after all. She snipped the little trinket from the other cat and wiggled it in her paw. "Follow me!" She hoped that maybe she could coax the other cat back to the shield where she could play safely, and they could watch this history in the making. "Come on kitty" she said playfully... "come with me."

Lapi looked at Dh'liah with a frown. She had a feeling that wouldn't work. Seeing the expression on Bevelle's face, Lapi and Luna followed without another word. They'd have to leave it to the elementals for now. All of the noises as they moved on made Lapi's ears ring. She ignored it, and just walk ahead with the group. Just who was that guy.? Luna started thinking - seeing as she had never seen that red and black guy the whole time they'd been there. Though, by the way they were fighting - she had a pretty good idea that he wasn't friendly.

Now fully out of the temple but beside it, Bevelle made a point out to apologize for any rashness she may have caused and took out the shards. She frowned as she did not know where the alter was. Turning to the group, she asked if anyone had seen anything. The sky, thought still blue banded with more smoke, and Bevelle turned to see lava starting its way down the volcanoes edges. Turning back around, Dh'liah could be seen to be emitting from it, and the bird appeared to be in much better condition. Smiling, relieved, she ran up to him.

Althea could hear the noise and could only ask .
What is happening ?as she looked a bevelle
Is everyone alright?
She asked around making sure everyone was alright .

mysin followed bevelle out and was waiting for instruction hoping she had some kind of plan to try and help the elementals out.
safalia was annoyed at the nerve of this other cat(pudds) taking away her shiny thing but decided if she wanted to get it back she should pobably follow. so with reluctance she did. sing her song as they went to keep herself entertained:
"fuzzy little kittycats slide down rainbows pounce pounce 123 slide down rainbows with me"

Pudds just laughed to herself and shook her head leading the other cat back to the supposed safety of the light shield... hoping that it was still safe, since somehow, in all the commotion, the group had left them although she wasn't around the other cat. A bit annoying, the tune she was singing was kinda catchy as she started humming along with the other cat. "Wait...what am I do?!" The cat shook her head and as they reached the light shield. Once they were both inside, she tossed the lava starting over to where safalia could play safely. She turned and watched as the other guardians were trying their best against the threat but it looked like fatigue was beginning to overtake them. Pudds could only watch and hope that they would win. Her tail twitched with anticipation.

Lapi and Luna shook their heads to Bevelle. "You only acted that way to protect us, right?" Luna said with a smile. Lapi nodded in agreement to what her friend said. She looked up to see the lava flowing in her head as the volcano. She gulped - Lapi wasn't the best around fire or things like that. Luna set her hand on Lapi's shoulder. "I'm sure we'll be okay." She said. Or... at least I hope we will... She added in her thoughts. The truth was - Luna was scared. They both saw Bevelle run off and turned around to see Dh'liah sitting with the baby bird. They both smiled. It must have been a big relief for her to see him alright.

02-07 23:29 melody_s_ang 9259 USR
As she approached, Dh'liah looked up. Though he looked a bit tired, his face was now glowing with a calm. Clearly he wasn't concerned for the inevitable destruction the volcano would cause, and if he was here, it must mean that they had succeeded in taking care of the shadow warrior--their enemy. Dh'liah told her that he was a descendant of the same rebels that had caused war before. It began to make sense to her. As Bevelle sat next to him, he eyed the shards on her neck. She clutched them and closed her eyes. Smiling, the elemental just stared at her. He could see her thoughts clearly and it amused him what she thought. Sighing he rotated his eyes, from the shards to the top of the temple, then got up to climb the stairs along side the temple.
Kirah was too weak to follow. She stayed, resting.

Pudds looked back at the other cat and sighed. She realized she had completely missed everything! How could this have happened. She looked over at the corner where Kirah now sat. The volcano seemed even angrier now. Leaving the other kitty, she trotted quickly over to Kirah and looked at her with worry in her eyes. "Are you hurt? Shouldn't we try and get out of here?"

02-07 23:36 melody_s_ang 9260 USR
Kirah eyed the cat and slowly nodded. Still sitting, she opened her arms for the kitty to go in and phased herself right by Dh'liah (as per my postfa few posts up, but I didnt want to leave you behind)) The battle had weakened her. But they had succeeded.

((Hehe, yeah... we got kinda lost... :)) I tried to figure out where exactly we were.))
Pudds rested in the girl's arms, feeling that weak, strange power emitting from her. She looked over at the other guardian and waited to see what would happen next. So much had already happened and she still had no idea what was going on. "Serves you right for stumbling upon something that wasn't any of your business" she told herself. She settled in and waited.

02-07 23:48 melody_s_ang 9261 USR
Kirah stroked the cat while focusing on healing herself, now that the group had followed Dh'liah to the top of the temple She bent her arm and concentrated within, slightly glowing and pulsing with energy. Offshoots of lighting bolts began to form over her mid section, then up into her arms and down into her legs. The creature on her lap would not be harmed.
((Waiting on a few more people before finishing this off^^))

Lapi tried following and keeping up with the group - but her fear of heights slowed her down slightly. Luckily - Luna had her wrist and was helping Lapi to the top quicker. Once they reached the top - Luna let go of Lapi and the girl moved to the side of her friend, to give her a view of what was happening. Lapi saw Kirah and a kitty come to the top with the group and Dh'liah. As the lightning started forming around Kirah, Lapi couldn't help but watch everything that the elemental was doing. Luna was the same - but every now and then, she would glance at the volcano.

mysin was glad that they had won but was afraid it wasn't over, they still had to do something with the shards though and mysin was hoping they could do it soon she was fearing the volcano and the region of history.
safalia now outside with everyone else, carrying her shiny thing in her mouth she went and put it inside mysin's bag so it couldnt get lost, then she happily hopped over to were everyone else was and started to randomly pounce on peoples feet.

Glow quickly followed the others out, her fur fluffed up in fear. She sat down long enough to fix her fur, getting up and walking towards the ziggurat curiously, nose twitching. She didn't completely understand who that other person was, but he seemed to be defeated, that was good. She looked towards the volcano feeling a little nervous. When she saw the others heading to the top of the ziggurat she quickly followed. She didn't want to be left behind.

Althea went up to bevelle to follow but first asked
Is it ok if I come along?
She had already upset one twin she did not want to do so with the other.

As the group made their way following him, the heavy ash cloud got thicker and thicker. They didn't have any time left. Lava had started to pour past the volcano and in part of the jungle, catching anything it touched on fire. It rushed at terrifying speeds, with no sign of stopping. Still very calm, Dh'liah waited for the group to reach him at the very top where an ancient shrine stood. His twin, Scott, sat on Kirah, waiting. He looked Dh'liah over and began talking in their native language. Dh'liah shook his head, signaling that he would be ok. The altar in front of them was made of stone and inlaid with rubies that glowed as the elemental laid his hand over them. The place for the shards was inlaid with gold and had an ancient free flow, yet stable design. Instinctively, Bevelle put the shards together properly and they glowed and merged temporarily into one. Placing the stone into the shrine, again instinctively, she stood back while Dh'liah started the ritual process. His hands began to glow a purple-cyan and see through clear vaporous energy fled from his hand onto the ruins as he shut his eyes and concentrated on the shards and the volcano. Soon his whole body began glowing as his kinesis ran through his body. When the glow from his ancient tongue could be heard though his spoken words. After a solid 10 minutes, the glow from his body flickered then dissipated. Dh'liah moaned, putting his hand on his head. His twin went to help him, sitting. He sat on the stone floor to regain his energy. Stunned, Bevelle went over to catch him. "Are you going to be ok?" She was concerned. He looked up to her, clearly weakened but a bit puzzled. "You have concern for me?" He shook his head as she pointed his fingers towards a trap door and concentrated on it. Slowly it began to lift up, revealing a hidden chamber.
The temple shook and rattled. The purple guardian was startled but both of the weakened elementals were calm.

02-08 00:20 Kodak Sunset 2087 USR
Pudds watched everything go down from the arms of Kirah. She was stunned. She had never seen anything like this before. Her eyes were open wide in excitement. She began to purr as the trap door opened. What could be inside?

02-08 00:23 animallover11 16567 USR
Glow pricked her ears, sniffing the air. She wasn't liking the looks of this. She watched as lava started flowing into the jungle. No, she didn't like this at all. What could she do though. She watched as Dh'liah did...something. Glow sat up on her hind legs, watching as Dh'liah worked. She was a little concerned when he finished and seemed weakened. She looked towards the trap door, taking a small step towards it. Were they supposed to go in, or stay here? She wasn't sure, so she waited to see what Bevelle would do.

02-08 00:28 aires213 10111 USR
As althea reached the top, she was amazed at the sight she said to her self an ancient shrine?
She watched s everything stratred to unfold in her eyes.
One twin spoke in ancient tongues in which after he collapsed, as she seen bevelle go to him and ask if he was ok .
Then she saw the trap door open and revel hidden chamber.
She waited to see what bevelle would do and what the twins would say.
