'What is with all the commotion?!' The loud crack had awoken a Guardian who had fallen asleep in the tree. She'd always been wandering around ancient areas, and had, surprisingly, slept through the majority of the noises as loud as they had been. She blinked her large green eyes and then moved her hands round in a small cylinder, letting a small rainbow flow from the branch of the tree and to the ground. She slid gracefully down, her eyes wide upon the new Guardians that were clad unlike any she had seen before. With a mackerel (a beautiful Peppermint Pony, who had been hiding in the bushes, rushed over to Aurora and let the Guardian sit upon her back. [Hopefully they are big enough for a Guardian to sit upon?]. She looked around at all of those present, as if her presence was expected. She shrugged slightly and returned her focus back to the Guardians, eyes slightly narrowed. Something about them... seemed familiar, but she could not quite put her finger on it. With a slight gasp, her eyes rested on the electrical Guardian. She had been having dreams of a Guardian as lightning shadows, cloaked in electricity. A coincidence? Perhaps.

As the lightning wielder went in to tame things down, she kept her eyes on the group. The female warrior noticed a female wearing red, silver and black (Akuru), approaching her mate. Anger struck as she yelled "yesuani!", making the lightning girl turn and stop her because she could do any damage.
The lightning wielder cautiously looked at the girl, still holding the female warrior.

ooc: No problem :D go ahead and use the form : Made-Up Character Introductory Form:: should be on the homepage if it creates a character to play with it
It gives you a chance to 'win' a ITW of your own

Sighing at the lack of response, she let the 'infant' go. Turning to the warriors but with a clear view of the group, the lightning female began to talk to the male. Her voice was soft and the group could barely hear, but Bevelle did notice that she was speaking in the ancient tongue.
With the bolts of lightning concentrating around his fingers and hands, she turned her voice to the warriors. She had a note that remained on their minds, she raised the voice.
'Ny-Sckiele? Ki riega Ka?'
Realizing that the group was not of their time, the female shook her head and again spoke.
'Who are you? What regal do you have being here?'
Her voice was almost regal. Strong with a bit of wonder, caution and slight anger. Her voice held a slight accent but was clearly understandable.

They appear to be speaking a language a bit like our own, maybe that of the ancient days? Saria thought. She realized that she probably should wait and see what happened, she desperately wanted to try and speak with the lightning guardian, but she did not want to cause the two warriors to hurt anyone. She stepped closer towards the center of the group, rubbing her shoulder where it had scraped on the rocks when she jumped in surprise at the lightning. "We are from a village down the path and have stumbled upon this clearing while we were following the path to try and find the source of a mysterious explosion." She said. Rain jumped when the lightning struck, and her fur was all fluffed out in fright, she walked herself down again and stopped toward Sleepy. "I wonder who they all are?" Rain mowed quietly. Cleo turned at the sound of the lightning and wondered what was going on, she looked above all the other ITW heads to try and figure it out...

Akuru ducked once more and a small whimpering escaped her lips. Her eyes looked up at the Guardian surrounded by lightning whom was protecting her from a charge from the other armoured warrior. Curiosity as well as fear shone in her eyes, fear for being punished or hurt, but curious to know more about this lightning wielder and to touch the surface of the shining armour. Reluctantly, she slowly back up, still relatively close to the male warrior but hoping a far enough distance to relieve the female warrior of any distress she had caused. Akuru's eyes wandered back to the lightning wielder filled with shame and fear of being scolded. Her head bowed down as she wondered what the guardian may say to her.

"If I've truly been hearing all of this in my dreams, as I am beginnign to believe, it is more of a travel... an adventure, as they are here in Aurora mused aloud, her eyes rather wide as she watched the lightning wielder all the more closely. Caramel snorted and dug a hoof into the ground, pawed at it restlessly. One cat and one kitten rushed to the scene, perching at Aurora's feet instantly. They were panting as if they'd been searching long and hard for it. Her was Axelin and Pocky! Their wings flittered and they looked around nervously. "What is your name, if I may be so bold to ask?" she asked boldly.
[Go ahead and make up a character like Fae said! Or, if Fae would allow it, you could use one of my ITW? :3 You might win your own in this event. Fae makes her events totally fair and fun, so no matter what, I think you have a fair chance at winning. :D I made a note that you're a non-owner though. :3 Everyone deserves ITW love!]

Lailta distracted by the sudden commotion at the front, forgot all about the nice kitty Artemis and started to crawl forward. She wanted to get a better view of the new girl. She looked really interesting, she had never seen someone made of lightning before. Though Lailta was a little scared, she was more curious than anything. Hi, lightning lady! I'm Lailta. "Who are you?" she said jumping up with excitement, not realizing the danger she could be in.

Crackkkkkkkk!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!! A guardian of the ITW felt a coconut hit its head! He found a little starning coin, and said you poor thing I need to get you back to the ITW! So he rushed back to the ITW and looked at Faerain nervously. He said, this little coin is starving and wants an owner. Faerain said, well I can give this poor little coin a home with me. I think her's rather cool. Then the 2 went to faerains present and had here you go be nice to the other adoptables. Faerain would always look at her presentation and ador and talk to the little coin.
THE END

((OOC: Ok who is ready to hear Ginger's first prophecy?! (Rhetorical question lol XD) Well, here it comes!))
Ginger stood there, frozen, and unconsciously began to step between (but off to the side) of Bevell and the warriors. And then, it happened. Her eyes turned deep gray while the pupils dilated, and her mouth opened wide.
"The wielder of lightning is here to protect, From the dangers towards us that she alone can detect. If she be friend or foe is unknown, But she will help save our distressed home. Where the willow grows are, That is where it will begin, The darkest hour, and dark condemned (sp.?)")
After reciting the sudden prophecy, Ginger's eyes turned back to their original vibrant green and the pupils returned to the normal size. She dropped off to the side, hitting the ground softly, and fainted instantly.
Artemis and Spirit ran to her side, making sure that she hadn't hit anything on the fall. They then took a protective position around her, keeping their bodies covering the vital organs (<<-sorry if the organs part was unnecessary :D)).
((OOC: the lightning Guardian reminds me of Tahliia Grace and the Olympians looking, and therefore she is epic not to cry and win :D))

Ayu finally woke as a guardian surrounded by lightning came among the group. He blinked sleepily, not knowing what had happened while he was asleep. Shifting slightly, he saw a female and male guardian, both dressed in armor, and the lightning surrounded guardian was speaking to them, in a tongue he couldn't understand. He looked up at Bevelle, wondering what had transpired, and what was yet to come.

"Sleepy looked over at Rain. "Oooo I don't know who they are either ... but oh wait!" she cocked her head a little bit to hear better. "It sounds like the lightning one is speaking our language now! Yay!"

The lightning wielder looked down to see a child. Rather shocked, she questioned what one would be doing here, and if the group here had really "caused" what had happened.
Bending down so she was at the child's level, she repeated her question to her, only in a tone not quite as harsh.
"Whatever you are doing here?"
((ooc--check further up the page, I did make another plot post. The lightning girl *does* speak within the common language--))

Alte say and felt the anger in the male glowing she did what any one would do and got ready for defense she jumped in front of Lailta and Artemis since they where the smallest of the bunch and playing unaware of the danger and steady her self to fight .
When suddenly the male stop and she notice another female in the distance she could only see her in that dark cave because strangely she was surrounded by lightning she glanced at Bevelle waiting to see what she would do next.

Wishes nodded and kept pace with the Sleepy Guardian, feeling safest near her. She didn't see as harmful as the others within the group. When they came to the clearing, she fell back a little bit behind her, her big bushy tail resting on the ground. She didn't like the way the new warriors were acting towards their group. All they wanted to see was what was going on, after all! When the male charged, Wishes ducked behind the Guardian in front of her, paws of her head, shaking. They definitely scared her. And what about that lightning Guardian? What was she all about? Wishes was so scared and confused and chose to stay hidden under the PJ clad Guardian, hoping for safety there. When they continued to speak, she lifted one paw to her ear, hoping to understand, but made no move to reply when the lightning Guardian spoke in their language.

Lailta looked up at the lady. "I was just gonna playing with this nice kitty Artemis, when I saw you" she said shyly. The lightning wielder didn't really scare Lailta but she seemed important and powerful. She didn't want to be in trouble with any of the adults, and didn't want to cause any trouble.

Akuru watched as a few approach the lightning wielder. Disliking crowds, which were usually two or more from her point of view, she dismissed the idea of investigating the Guardian's power. She still had her eyes trained on the warriors. The young girl noted that the male seemed to have taken a defensive position once more. Akuru connected that the lightning wielder did speak in their own language, and if they were worthy enough to prevent damage from what was impossible to engage in conversation, but it wasn't like Akuru could anyways. She only knew two words. The young girl skittered around the two tense warriors.

~ Sleepy showed with a bit of nervousness but lovingly petted Wishes hoping to calm the poor little one. She tried that the lightning wielder was speaking their language she wondered who would step up... and tell ask her about the loud noise and smoke. She was too frightened to do it herself... but hoped someone would. She wanted the smoke and noises to stop "nod nod" - because she wanted to go back home and sleep again!

Standing up and stepping back slightly, the lightning female stared up for a split second, to the warriors, then back to the guardian. She dismissed the idea of investigating the Guardian's power. She still had her eyes trained on the warriors. The young girl noted that the male seemed to have taken a defensive position once more. Akuru connected that the lightning wielder did speak in their own language, and if they were worthy enough to prevent damage from what was happening. Raising her brow, she spoke.
"The answers with which you seek lie up ahead, but beware. Those that do not prove themselves friend will face consequences that will not be taken lightly."
Taking her eyes off the child, she eyed Bevelle and gave her an inquisitive type look. As the guardian of time shuffled her memories, she approached the lightning female and stared her in the eyes. Bevelle then proceeded to put her one arm on the females shoulder. The female did not move, and though the warriors behind her twitched, the female only put her hand up loosely to signal that it was ok.
Closing her eyes, she whispered to the female. The warriors could hear her but not anyone from behind. Memories flooded her mind with the knowledge of the past. She realized then who the lightning girl was and why the warriors were so untrusting to the group.
"I...know you. I know what happened. You gave me guidance back then. Please trust me that I would not bring the kind of you enemies. The guard wants. Our enemies. She breathed in heavily. "Kirah. Is..."
The lightning female relaxed a bit and put her hand on bevelles shoulder. The lightning arcing on her hands dispated on the one touching the guardian. In an equally soft voice, she responded "Is not you I don't trust, child." Her eyes were semi-shut from thinking. "They will be there, and he will know. For now though, those who you guard well." She eyed the group. "In the meantime, it might be worthwhile to give these infants a lesson in our past" With that, she took off her hand and stepped towards the warriors. She had given them clear passage. Until "he" could see them. Then the true tests would begin.
Taking a second to regain her thoughts, the guardian of time went back to the group. "There should be another clearing leading to the smoke up ahead." With a nod to Kirah and one last glance at the now disappearing warriors, Bevelle led the way through the undergrowth of the jungle.
